Why did some coalition countries contribute a lot to the coalition and not others? Does each country's military budget explain its more or less important contribution? FOIA-00274-2021	Jones, Nate	7/6/2021	Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), I hereby request disclosure of the following: Two records identified by the Defense Intelligence Agency as: -January 9, 1989 "End of Tour Report (Addendum) General Perroots") and -March 17, 1989 "End of Tour Report (LtGen Perroots)" The documents requested include an after-action letter that Lieutenant General Leonard Perroots wrote in January 1989 describing a narrowly averted nuclear crisis that occurred in Europe in 1983, when North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces' annual exercise practicing nuclear release procedures put Soviet forces on high alert. Lack of further escalation of the 1983 Soviet "War Scare" was largely due to Lieutenant General Perroots' decision not to raise U.S. readiness in response to Soviet forces' increased alert status. On February 16, 2021, the Department of State ("DOS") Office of the Historian published a transcribed version of this letter in a new volume of its Foreign Relations of the United States series, with limited redactions. The Transcription is available to the public at the following DOS link: https://static.history.state.gov/frus/frus1981-88v04/pdf/frus1981-88v04.pdf (numbered paragraphs 1-10 on pages 1426-1429; relevant portions attached for reference). In this publication, DOS provides the following citation to the document, from the CIA: (Central Intelligence Agency, National Intelligence Council, Job 90T00435R: Chronological Files (1988), Box 1, Folder 12: C/NIC Chrono for December 1988). The National Security Archive previously received a copy of the attached Standard Form 135 the Washington D.C. Federal Records Center, which suggested that the documents were located in one of three boxes housed in the Washington Records Center. A search conducted pursuant to a separate (but related) FOIA request that is now the subject of ongoing litigation, National Security Archive v. Defense Intelligence Agency, No. 1:19-cv-529 (D.D.C.), revealed that the letter was not in those boxes.	Other Reasons - No Records
